

Carter Jones is a senior security consultant at Cigital, who has experience both as a consultant and a security researcher. He has worked with clients from a broad range of industries, both private and public sector. He has experience performing a range of security assessment activities including thick client/web application/network security assessments, red teaming, and building secure cloud deployments. In his spare time, Mr. Jones spends time with his family.